Overview

PolisOrbis is a real-time survey system that helps identify the different ways a collective intelligence think about a divisive or complicated topic. Here's a basic breakdown of some terms you'll need to know in order to understand this report.

Participants: These participated in the conversation by voting and writing statements. Based on how they voted, each participant is sorted into an opinion group.

Statements: Participants may submit statements for other participants to vote on. Statements are assigned a number in the order they're submitted.

Opinion groups: Groups are made of participants who voted similarly to each other, and differently from the other groups.
This conversation was run by Anonymous. The topic was 'Ice cream'.

How divisive was the conversation?

Statements (here as little circles) to the left were voted on the same way—either everyone agreed or everyone disagreed. Statements to the right were divisive—participants were split between agreement and disagreement.

Opinion Groups

Across 10 total participants, opinion groups emerged. There are two factors that define an opinion group. First, each opinion group is made up of a number of participants who tended to vote similarly on multiple statements. Second, each group of participants who voted similarly will have also voted distinctly differently from other groups.

Group A: 7 participants

Graph

Which statements were voted on similarly? How do participants relate to each other?

In this graph, statements are positioned more closely to statements which were voted on similarly. Participants, in turn, are positioned more closely to statements on which they agreed, and further from statements on which they disagreed. This means participants who voted similarly are closer together.
